

Canadian Archaeological Association 2011 Annual Meeting Halifax

The Canadian Archaeological Association is holding its 44th Annual Meeting in Halifax in May of 2011. As part of the conference, the Archaeological Land Trust of Nova Scotia and the Nova Scotia Archaeology Society are working together to organize a silent auction as a fund raising initiative. Any proceeds from the silent auction will go directly to helping the two organizations continue to meet their mandates. If you wish to contribute/donate to the silent auction, please contact Darryl Kelman (dkelman@crmgroup).

The Archaeological Land Trust of Nova Scotia is dedicated to protecting Nova Scotia's archaeological resources. To achieve this goal, the ALTNS pursues land ownership, conservation agreements and cooperative agreements with landowners.

The Nova Scotia Archaeology Society brings together individuals interested in the study and promotion of archaeology; disseminates knowledge and encourages the exchange of information among professionals and amateurs; and promotes the preservation and protection of archaeological resources throughout the province.
